

U. S. NOT ANXIOUS TO TRANSFER DEBT

Answer to Germany's Proposal.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Though the United States government has thus far avoided any comment on the merits of the latest German proposals on reparations, there is one paragraph in the note upon which the allied governments would like an answer from Washington, but it is not in the official, formal, or official language available.

Germany formally expresses her willingness to assume the allied indebtedness to the United States, approximately ten billion dollars, Germany says on this point.

"In case the United States and the allies should so desire, Germany would be disposed to take over to the limit of her capacity the payment of the allied obligations to the United States on account of their debt to the latter."

Allies Are Willing

The allies are perfectly willing. They always have been. They would gladly transfer the debt they owe the United States to the backs of the Germans. The preceding administration agreed to submit a similar proposition with respect to the European debt, but it has never been acted upon by our congress.

Now the question arises whether the German suggestion meets with the American government's approval.

The allies have insisted that the United States in transmitting any German proposal acquired a certain responsibility for the fulfillment of her promises. Now it is declared in the United States that the allies have no such responsibility for the fulfillment of her promises. America tacitly admits she will consider the transference of the allied debt owed America to the Germans for payment.

Congress Is Opposed

Sentiment inside congress is strongly against any such transference, and President Harding has been known to hold the view that the foreign loans made by the United States to the allies were a valued asset. There isn't the slightest chance of America agreeing to the German proposal for a transference of the debt, even though the allies may so desire.

On the other hand, can America avoid saying so and thus puncturing an unacceptable at least one clause in the German reparations proposal?

That is the question which is being discussed among diplomats, and it will not be surprising if this particular dilemma had as much to do with the hesitation of the department of state to forward the German proposals to the allies as the apparent unwillingness of the allies to receive the German note at this time.

Allies Plensed With U. S.

The more the situation develops the more the allied governments are pleased with the apparent recognition by the Washington administration that the problem of the world, put-tingly reparations, cannot be avoided by America. The passage of the Knox resolution declaring a state of peace with Germany comes at a very moment when Secretary Hughes, hoping the influence of the United States may be properly exerted for the resumption of negotiations over the entire reparation question, in fact he is in the position of courting new proposals from Germany which he may present to the allies. After the supreme council has acted and the Ruhr valleys such proposals will be made by Germany and the discussion will proceed. Germany is not in a position to resist. Hereafter must continue to bargain, negotiate, discuss, and finally yield.

Cannot Avoid Foreign Affairs

Reparation negotiations probably will go on for several weeks, and ultimately the allies expect the United States to have a definite voice in the settlement of the diplomats here. How the United States can maintain silence while her biggest debtors arrange for payments with Germany which may affect the export trade of the United States. It was determination of this administration to keep out of European affairs as much as possible. But events are much more compelling than the political campaign was in progress last summer. The Harding administration finds foreign affairs a thorn in the side of every attempt to concentrate on domestic problems.

EDWARD STABLER HAS SUDDEN OPERATION

Edward Stabler, 320 South Third street, was operated on for acute appendicitis at Mercy hospital about 1 a. m. Sunday. His condition was reported as favorable Monday. Mr. Stabler was down town Saturday night driving his car about and was one of those who made the tour of inspection of the Gazette plant. He returned home about 9:30 and went to bed complaining of a pain in his side. A doctor was called and Mr. Stabler was rushed to the hospital about midnight where an operation was performed immediately.

ALLDERMAN HELMS GOING TO OCONTO

Alderman Walter Helms, Janesville, is one of five from Rock county who will go to Oconto, Tuesday, to attend the annual state camp of the Modern Woodmen of America. Delegates will be elected to the national convention at St. Louis in June.

The other four from this county who will attend Tuesday and Wednesday are: Prof. E. G. Smith and J. M. Lien, Beloit; C. F. Brooks, Evansville; and James Vinegar, Clinton.

HUNDREDS SAW GAZETTE PLANT

New Conception of Size of Institution Given Public at Reception.

What would Benjamin Franklin, the most eminent journalist and publisher of his day, thought had he been among the 3,500 visitors gaining a new conception and understanding of the conducting of a thoroughly modern and complete newspaper during the house-warming party in the offices of the Janesville Daily Gazette on Saturday?

Got a New Idea.

Few people have a comprehensive conception of newspaper publication. Those who came and were informed of the speed methods now have a new interest in newspapers. All found the visit worth while. From 9 o'clock in the afternoon until after 10 o'clock the hundreds inspected the well arranged and equipped offices and the mechanical departments. The terms of "wonderful," "complete" and "amazing" were on the lips of each person as they left the new offices.

"I had no idea it took so much machinery," was the usual verdict.

Interest in Machines.

The various offices and departments were decorated with baskets of roses sent by friends of the paper and its publisher, H. H. Ellis. The floral offerings of the Chamber of Commerce and George Yalm, Jr. and others added much to the success of the occasion.

In the business offices, a lively orchestra during the reception hours in the editorial and composing rooms, music was furnished by Victor and Edison machines.

Mechanical Marvels.

The line-types and press held most of the attention of the visitors. These mechanical wonders amazed them for the speed displayed by the operators and the press was something unknown to the majority of the visitors.

The inspection of the offices was not limited to people from Janesville. There were visitors from all parts of southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois. The field covered by the Gazette was represented by its correspondents, subscribers and friends generally, who came to see and then to pay compliments.

Editors Pay Compliments.

The number of visitors who own or operate farms was pleasing to the officials of the paper. Hundreds of farm producers who read the paper daily came in to see newspaper machinery. The majority of the county board members attended. During the last session of the board, supervisors were amazed with the speed with which the news of the meeting was compiled, printed to be ready a few minutes later after being transacted. They marvelled and came to determine the methods.

Southern Wisconsin publishers and editors paid tribute to the Gazette as the leading publication in its field after personal visits. The completeness of the offices was acknowledged by all of these veteran journalists and printers. Among these visitors were both men and women, long in the profession of printing, who had their start learning or feeding the old hand power presses.

From Monroe came Emory Odell, Robert Knott and T. M. Chadwick, of the Monroe Times and J. E. Weddell, of the Monroe Journal. J. Hibbard of the Stoughton Courier-Hub paid liberal tribute to the paper. Among the state visitors was Riley Young, speaker of the assembly, and wife from Danien.

Correspondents Come.

The Gazette's big staff of correspondents from many towns and villages came and after looking over the plant were entertained at a luncheon. Dr. Luby, wife and son of Stoughton, were visitors at the home of a lunch.

The Gazette has a few of the souvenir first pages of the first paper printed and any one calling will be given one as long as they last. Among the many guests were old subscribers who had taken the paper for years and who were keenly interested in the development of the Gazette.

Classy Playing Features Tractor Split With Chisholm

Locals Come Back With 3-0 Win Sunday Against Saturday's 4-2 Defeat

While cool breezes were blowing and the fans in the stands were shivering in overcoats, the Janesville Tractors showed the visiting Chisholm club a red-hot time on Sunday. Shutting out Darby O'Brien's crew, 3 to 0, they made up for an unfortunate defeat of Saturday, 4 to 2.

The Sabbath affair paid in more ways than one for the defeat. It was a duel between Smiling Lill Lathrop and Big Donaldson with the Janesville twirler having the best of it pitching to only 30 men and giving only a half dozen hits. It was major league ball with thrilling plays and each team taking advantage of every opening, the Tractors making the breaks.

Support is Perfect
Not more than one hit in any one inning was given Chisholm by Lathrop who enjoyed marvelous support in the field, featured by two flashing doubles, started by Harry Holland. Only once did the miners see third and only three times did they reach second.

It was in the fourth and the seventh that the Tractors sailed into Donaldson, bunting their hits and using every possible trick of the game. Two men had already been out in the field, when the first commenced with a single by Brackett. Perrier's long drive to right rushed Hank on to third from where he scored on Schmidt's Texas over short. Although Donaldson's catch along the third base line flung the pillows, the inning was over when Shook tied to short.

The tally as enough to win, but the Tractors themselves were not satisfied. In the seventh when they shot over a brace of runs. After, Holland and Shook had singled and were advanced by Lathrop's sacrifice, "Smiling" over with a sacrifice while he himself was safe. A single by Croak scored Shook third. That was all the scoring.

SATURDAY'S GAME
One game in which such a comes to any baseball team sometimes during a season landed heavily upon the Janesville Tractors Saturday and Chisholm took the first of the brace of games, a 4 to 2 win. It was a positive coming as it did in the initial stanza.

On a lone hit and a series of incidents, Darby O'Brien's outfit, put over a quartet of counters. From then on, the miners not only were skinned but Smithson's deliveries were so much of a mystery that they could gather only one more hit for total of two for the night. Seven of the visitors whiffed the atmosphere.

Smithson Inevitable
After that bad opening, the battle broke forth in a display of the national pastime. Smithson duplicated his southpaw twirling of a week ago making the corner workers bite freely at his faster breakers. After the first frame, no counter came from the Tractors. Smithson man got past second and only five negotiated that far.

Although the Tractors managed to outwit O'Brien's club, 9 to 2, they lost the game. The visitors' well enough to allow only two runs to be counted by the locals, one in the seventh and another in the ninth. Three of the swats came in the lucky seventh while the Tractors were standing and pulling for a change of luck. Shook started the music with a Texas leaguer over short. He came in on singles by Brockway and Croak. In the ninth inning, "Smiling" Lathrop, a double play, started off with a two banger, scoring when Shortstop Waddell scored up one by Croak.

The Sad Story
A two banger by J. Waddell worked havoc for Janesville in that crazy, first coming as it did with three men on and none out, and scoring another Waddell, and Brandy. The trouble came started because Artie Schmidt, Tractor shortstop, was the victim of one of baseball's off days. His error put Shortstop Waddell on first. A sacrifice by Brandy then reached first safely. Smithson's wild pitch plus a base on balls to Rooney had filled the bags for Jack Waddell's stick work. An error by Holland permitted Rooney to advance and the game was decided across the plate on Bond's sacrifice with the fourth run winning the game in the initial inning.

SIDELIGHT NOTES
With two such pitchers as Lathrop and Smithson, the Tractors are assured of a good season.

The more so with the great work of the "Three Eyes" out in the garden. They had 10 chances over the week-end and got 'em all.

By the way the big reason for calling the team the Tractors was in order to obtain a franchise in the Central Industrial league with its many advantages.

Holland sure worked into two pretty doubles Sunday, especially the second one in which he touched out Rooney at second and tossed to Croak in time to get J. Waddell at first.

There wasn't much long hitting, but Perring and Brockway got doubles.

Schwind, Perring and Brockway led the hitting total for both days with three each. Brock, Holland and Shook got a couple each, Brackett making one.

Janesville changed its batting order Sunday.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Gharrity Fourth in A. L. Batting

Chicago—"Babe" Ruth, the home run king of the major leagues, is finding a worthy rival in George Kelly, first baseman of the New York Nationals, who is tied with Ruth in the race with five circuit drives to his credit. Kelly is playing his second season on the major leagues as a regular.

Besides leading the American league in homers, Ruth is runner-up to Harry Heilmann of Detroit in the scramble for the American league batting honors, according to averages including games of Wednesday. Heilmann is topping the batters with an average of .513, compared with a mark of .447 attained by Ruth. St. Paul's slugger is behind the New York slugging with .419. Harris of Washington is showing the way to the base stealers with four thefts. Other leading batters:

Gharrity, Washington, formerly of Detroit, Wis., .406; Tobin, St. Louis, .400; Young, Detroit, .399; Rice, Cleveland, .388; Sewell, Cleveland, .388; Johnston, Cleveland, .378; Seaver, Cleveland, .376.

All Stars Beat Footville, 2-1

When the support back of Snyder broke in the sixth after he had allowed a hit, the Janesville All Stars broke a tie and won from Footville Sunday, 2 to 1. Snyder engaged in a hot pitcher's duel with Hager in which he got 19 strikeouts to Hager's 11.

Snyder weakened with men on the bases while Hager seemed to tighten up to the fifth, both pitchers moved them down, but in that frame the Stars scored their lone run and Footville duplicated in their half.

After the sixth, neither team saw first base until Footville's turn at the stick, when Clark tried to stretch a three bagger into a homer.

Milton Will Revive Grid Next Autumn

Milton.—Intercollegiate football is to be taken up by Milton college again, after a lapse of two seasons in which no team has represented the institution. With the faculty, athletic department alumni and student body strongly in favor of re-instituting the gridiron sport, everything indicates that an eleven representing the Brown and Blue will be put on the field next September and that football will remain a permanent sport at the Rock county college.

A questionnaire taken last week by Prof. W. D. Burdick, head of the athletic department, showed that an overwhelming majority of the male students were in favor of football and that the greater share would be willing to try out for the team next fall. With football assured by the faculty and students, a big order for equipment has been placed with a sporting goods house and other preparations are being made for getting an early start. The new coach, George H. Crandall, who is to take up his duties in September, is strongly in favor of the re-institution of football, and in addition hopes to put a cross-country team in the field.

Last Week of H. S. Basketball

Going into the last week of interclass games, the championship of the high school will be decided within the next few days. Monday afternoon, the Faculty play the Freshmen at 4:15 and the Vocational school tackles the Sophomores at 5 o'clock. The games will be of four innings each at Fourth Ward park.

Shamrocks Beat W. O. W. 4 to 0

With Don Dawson pitching great ball, the Shamrocks Sunday applied the whitewash to the Woodmen, of the World, 4 to 0. Dawson came near entering the hall of fame, holding the twirler out for a single but Marko's fly to right field doubled him off second.

Viney did the twirling for the Woodmen allowing 7 hits and striking out 12. Dawson gave only one hit and struck out 15. The game was close except for the third when Viney weakened and three hits coupled with an error put the game on ice for the Shamrocks. This win makes up for the 6-2 defeated suffered by the "Irishers" at Madison a week ago.

Probe Alleged Fight Fixing Next Monday

Omaha "Kid" Schlaffer and "Toldeo" Johnny Lewis and their managers, like Bernstein and Art Welch, respectively, will be called to appear before the state boxing commission at Milwaukee next Monday to explain the alleged "frame up" of last Wednesday night's welterweight scrap here. This information was given out by the commission office over the long distance telephone Monday morning. Referee Joe Steinmeyer also will be asked to attend the hearing, it was stated.

The commission had the matter under advisement Monday morning. It was said, "Whether any Janesville persons will be called upon for testimony is a question which the commission has not decided."

Gharrity Fourth in A. L. Batting

Chicago—"Babe" Ruth, the home run king of the major leagues, is finding a worthy rival in George Kelly, first baseman of the New York Nationals, who is tied with Ruth in the race with five circuit drives to his credit. Kelly is playing his second season on the major leagues as a regular.

Besides leading the American league in homers, Ruth is runner-up to Harry Heilmann of Detroit in the scramble for the American league batting honors, according to averages including games of Wednesday. Heilmann is topping the batters with an average of .513, compared with a mark of .447 attained by Ruth. St. Paul's slugger is behind the New York slugging with .419. Harris of Washington is showing the way to the base stealers with four thefts. Other leading batters:

Gharrity, Washington, formerly of Detroit, Wis., .406; Tobin, St. Louis, .400; Young, Detroit, .399; Rice, Cleveland, .388; Sewell, Cleveland, .388; Johnston, Cleveland, .378; Seaver, Cleveland, .376.

MUSIC TEACHERS' ASS'N FORMED IN APPLETON IN 1910

The Wisconsin Music Teachers' association was organized in June 1910 at the school of Music, Lawrence college, Appleton, where teachers had been invited by Professor Harper, dean of the school of music, to discuss the formation of an association.

Professor Parker, Madison, honorary president was greatly interested as were other teachers throughout Wisconsin. For his efforts Professor Harper was chosen as first president and Professor Parker as honorary president.

The association has been happily established. At the first meeting the papers were read on different phases of musical education and concerts were given.

The conventions have been held annually since in representative cities of the state to accommodate as much as possible a different section each year. Only two cities have been chosen for the convention.

The conventions were held at Appleton in 1910, Appleton in 1911, Beloit in 1912, Ripon in 1913, Madison in 1914, Janesville in 1915, Fond du Lac in 1917, Sheboygan in 1918, Oshkosh in 1919, Madison in 1920, Milwaukee in 1921, and 1922.

During its existence only two presidents have been honored with re-election. Prof. Liborius, a pianist, was elected president in 1910, and Prof. Liborius, a pianist, was elected president in 1920.

Dentist Shot to Death

Dentist Shot to Death
in Quarrel With Wife
Cheney—Thomas J. Rowland, a dentist, died early Monday of gunshot wounds inflicted in a quarrel with his wife. The shooting occurred shortly after midnight. Dr. Rowland was first brought to the hospital, said his wife, did the shooting but when at the point of death, is said to have indicated this statement by calling the affair an accident.

The police were told that Dr. Rowland and recently became involved with a young girl and that Mrs. Rowland learned of the affair through the girl's mother.

"The person inside wouldn't take no, Miss, for an answer."

"He was like us, wasn't he? Did he give his name?" asked the young woman.

"No, Miss. Just said he was from the Omium Club."

Whitford and his daughter exchanged glances. "Some business with on. Announce us and we'll go right in."

They were on his heels when he gave their names.

Bromfield started up, too late to prevent their entrance. He stood silent for a moment, uncertain what to do, disconcerted by the financial assistance of the inquiry lifted toward the other guest.

The mining man forced his hand. "Won't you introduce us, Clarence?" he asked bluntly.

Reluctantly their host went through the formula. There was material for an explosion present in this room that would blow him sky-high if a match should be applied to it.

Durand got to telling what he knew. He would never speak to him again. They might even spread a true story, that would bar every house and club in New York to him.

"We've heard of Mr. Durand," said Beatrice.

Her tone challenged the attention of the gang leader. The heavy eyes flashed defiance at him. A pulse of anger was throbbing in the soft round throat.

Instantly he watched her. It was his habit to look hard at attractive women. "Most people have," he admitted.

"Mr. Lindsay is our friend," she said. "We've just come from seeing him."

The man to whom she was engaged had been put through so many flutters of fear during the last twelve hours that a new one more or less did not matter. But he was still not shock-proof. His fingers clenched and he tightened the arm of the chair.

"What did he tell you?"

Beatrice looked into his eyes and read in them once more stark fear. Again she had a feeling that there was something about the whole affair she had not yet fathomed—some secret that Clay and Clarence knew, and perhaps this captain of thugs knew.

She tried to recall what he said. His story in her mind for the key to his terror. What could it be that he was afraid Clay had told her? What was it they all knew except Lindsay's friends? And the fact that Clarence should be trembling lest he be discovered, should the Arizona too, join the conspiracy of silence? At any rate she would not uncover her hand.

"He told several things," she said significantly. "You've got to make open confession, Clay."

The ex-pugilist chewed his cigar and looked at her.

"What would the confessions be?" she asked.

"That the man with him murdered Collins?"

"That's not true," said the girl quickly.

"So Lindsay's your friend, eh? Different here, Miss. The clubman had told him and what he had since learned about her. He knew that this must be evil to whom his host was engaged. "How about you, Bromfield?"

The clubman stiffened. "I've nothing against Mr. Lindsay."

"Thought you had."

"Of course I haven't. Why should he?" asked Beatrice, backing up Clarence.

Durand looked at her with a cold insolence that was an insult. His eyes moved up and down the girl's slim figure. "I expect he could find a handsome reason if he looked around for it, Miss."

The girl's father clenched his fist. A flash of anger swept his rugged cheeks. He held himself, however, to the subject.

"You forget, Mr. Durand, that Lindsay was his guest last night."

Terry's laugh was contemptuous. "That's right. I'd forgot that."

Dinner Stories

After the prisoners had been duly fined for cruelty to the wife of his bosom he was asked to go to the magistrate's private room. There he found the ex-pugilist waiting.

"Look here," said the latter. "Your friend, Lindsay, is our friend, and we've just come from seeing him."

THE GIRL WHO HAD NO CHANCE

By Marion Rubincam

CHAPTER XXII. THE GAY PARTY.

When Cousin Emily laid aside her wraps and took off her hat and veil, Myra saw that she indeed was 36—35, or whatever her real age might be. She tried to count it up in her head—she, Myra, had been 10 when Cousin Emily came to visit them; she was almost 10 now, that made nine years. Her mother had said then that their cousin was 28 or so, but that made her about 29 now.

Myra turned round again to look, but Emily had fluffed her hair before a mirror, powdered her nose, and turned about—no, was she in her thirties? She did not look it. But the strong light from the window showed lines about her mouth and eyes, to Myra, meant age.

"Come to your room," the woman said and led her down the steepest of stairs. "This is my room, first saw the room she tried to describe to Ruth. 'She felt as though she were stepping into a flowered hat box, or into a closet. Brought up where space was cheap and big houses the fashion, the girl had no idea a room could be so tiny!'

"Now, off with your things and be comfortable. Do you want to wash? Here's the bath."

The shining plumbing was a delight to Myra, and the rows of bottles painted with gay flowers that lined the glass shelves fascinated her for weeks. Emily had such a variety of perfumes, powders, paints, and lotions, and goodness knows, what else!

"Breakfast!" she heard in a clear, bright voice. So she went back to the living room.

In some marvelous fashion, Emily had slipped from her street dress into a loose velvet and chiffon negligee, and she was now curled up in a corner of her enormous sofa, with a low table before her, a glass of coffee to keep awake. She arose at 10 or even later, when she heard Emily speaking in the bathroom—Emily took a cool shower morning and night, and in the afternoon, bath that rivaled the storied ones of ancient Rome for its length and luxuriousness. In her own simple kimono Myra curled up on the other end of the sofa and ate rolls and drank far more coffee than was good for her.

"Now!" Emily leaned back with a sigh of pure content. "Tell me about everything. Your mother said she was sending letters with you."

"So one day began, and so all the other days began. Myra slipped easily into this new life. She stayed up gloriously late at night, and when her healthful home training made her sleepy at night, she made herself coffee to keep awake. ## USEFUL BIRD CITIZENS

BY J. HAMMOND BROWN

Copyright 1920, by The International Syndicate.

Size—A trifle smaller than the English Sparrow. Plumage—General effect in black with orange flame markings on wings and tail (yellow in female). MALE. Upperparts, throat and breast, shiny black. Basal half of wing feathers, salmon; rest of wing, black. Sides of breast and flanks, deep reddish salmon. Belly, white tinged with salmon. FEMALE. Salmon color of male replaced by dull yellow. Head, grayish. Back, gray with greenish tinge. Underparts, white. The young males acquire full adult plumage after first breeding season.

Range—Breeds from central Canada south to Washington, Utah, Colorado, Oklahoma, Arkansas and North Carolina. Winters in West Indies and from central Mexico to Ecuador and British Guiana.

A wild, blown the bird lover has called the little Redstart, and with its coat of black, tipped on wings and tail with orange-flame it resembles nothing so much as a brand, half charred and half glowing.

For a long time this member of the wood warbler family was classed as a flycatcher by some ornithologists, and it is not surprising as it has many of the flycatcher characteristics.

So many of our birds have been misnamed that it is not surprising to find this little chap is another victim.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl. I have been writing to a boy out of town, but since my girl friend was down there on a visit he has stopped writing to me. He has a ring of mine. Should I write and ask him for it? A WORRIED GIRL.

I think you should write and ask for the ring.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl nearly 17. I have a step-father and he is very cruel to me. I have no friends and I go with my brother's boy friend. He is very good to me. Father does not want me to go out with him, although my brother and I know him to be good. Father has told me to get out of the house five or six times. Should I go or not? LONESOME.

Your father is justified in objecting to your going places with your brother's friend. You are really too young to "go with boys." It is a great pity, however, that you have no girl friends. I think you should try to make friends with girls.

If your father is very cruel, and if your mother thinks best, I would advise you to get work with some kind family. You could probably find a place where you would be taken in as one of the family. You are too young, however, to think of office work.

I am very sorry to hear about your mother's condition and feel the deepest sympathy for her because she does not hear from your brother. Try to be comforted with the thought that her suffering will not last long, and trust that to her at least the mystery about your brother will be cleared when she passes out of your lives into a better life.

Keep a brave heart and do your best. When your father sees your effort he will try to be good to you. Do not let your burden alone, but let your little brothers help in every way they can. They will be better men if they are not spoiled as boys.

Any way, the experience gave me an idea. I'm going to try to make the drug stores to lay in a stock of Daisy Canned Soups today simply because I am too modest. The bird I was trying to sell to was all stocked up with regular soups and he asked me if D. C. Soups had any medicinal value, and in my natural modesty I told him that although they contain 3456 calories to the square inch and 6777 vitamins to the can, I couldn't conscientiously say they have actual medicinal value.

The result was, he didn't give me an order, although with a slight stretch of the old imagination I could just as easily have said they were positively reeking with medicinal value, because I defy you to name another brand of soup that's been the cause of more doctors being called in or more medicines being put in circulation.

The bird I was trying to sell to was all stocked up with regular soups and he asked me if D. C. Soups had any medicinal value, and in my natural modesty I told him that although they contain 3456 calories to the square inch and 6777 vitamins to the can, I couldn't conscientiously say they have actual medicinal value.

The result was, he didn't give me an order, although with a slight stretch of the old imagination I could just as easily have said they were positively reeking with medicinal value, because I defy you to name another brand of soup that's been the cause of more doctors being called in or more medicines being put in circulation.

Anyway, the experience gave me an idea. I'm going to try to make the drug stores to lay in a stock of Daisy Canned Soups today simply because I am too modest.
